

The Physical and Mental Character Creator is intended for adults and teenagers looking to find themselves and explore their self expression through this personality quiz and character building program. It can be used at home for personal enjoyment in a casual, intimate setting and shared with friends to express the physical manifestation of your personality.

This program functions as both a personality quiz and a character builder. The user navigates through a series of questions that prompt them to reflect on how they feel, their values, and how they perceive themselves. Using the answers that the user selects, the program generates a character to reflect their personality.

I wanted this program to have a friendly, personable interface. I wanted the experience of the user to be enjoyable and encourage creativity. Since I intended this to be used at home, I designed the character to exist inside a hand-drawn browser within the page to integrate the technology with the hand-drawn character illustration. The computer speaks to you through a window where the user can read the prompted questions and select their answer in a check mark box. This interface is nostalgic and familiar to most audiences, as it imitates your basic desktop computer folder and window system--but with an added playful, brightly colored touch to look inviting, easy to use, and fun.
